GAYHEAD AND WATERSPOUT.
SAN FRANCISCO, November 17.—Few vessels have had a narrower escape from total destruction by a waterspout than the whaling bark Gayhead, which reached port yesterday. For two hours everything that a skilled navigator could do was done by Captain Foley and his men to escape the danger that threatened them, but finally all hope seemed gone. The captain sent his wife and son below, all the sails gave the lower topsails and a jib were furling and then the men sat down to await their fate. At the most critical moment the course of the waterspout changed and it went careering away past the stern of the bark. For two hours more the crew of the Gayhead watched the spout and then it disappeared as rapidly as it had come up.

THE NIPPON MARU.
SAN FRANCISCO, November 17.—The sudden death of Fourth Officer Ishikawa of the Nippon Maru, who expired suddenly in his stateroom while conversing with a friend on November 14, caused the vessel to be detained in quarantine for nearly six hours yesterday afternoon while the body was taken ashore at Angel Island and an autopsy performed to satisfy the Federal quarantine officer, Dr. Matheson, that death was not caused by some infectious disease. The steamer arrived inside the heads shortly after 1 o'clock, but it was not until 5 o'clock p. m. that Dr. Matheson had convinced himself that Ishikawa died of heart failure. The Maru was then allowed to proceed to the Pacific Mail dock, arriving there at 7 p. m.
